The focus of this project was the modification of a required course in the Health and Nursing Ministries’ master’s degree program into a course with eight weeks of on-line work interspersed with five on-campus seminars and a five hour application workshop. Technology used included blackboard, audio recording, PowerPoint slideshows and web links. Foundational / procedural information was adapted to the on-line format and the on-campus seminar format was maintained when content required group interaction and reflection on theological content.

The on-campus seminars and the four hour application workshop served as “anchors” for the on-line content. The class schedule of each seminar included 15 minutes at the onset of class to discuss, review, and clarify content presented in on-line format. The course will be offered again in fall 2006 with additional modifications to further incorporate video and audio into the on-line content.
